

Hertz's EV debacle exposes the green tyranny scam – NaturalNews.com

- Hertz's ambitious plan to electrify its rental fleet has failed, leading to significant financial losses, including a $1 billion impairment charge, plummeting stock prices and the resignation of CEO Stephen Scherr.
- The company's EVs were expensive to maintain, depreciated rapidly and were less popular with renters than traditional gas-powered vehicles, forcing Hertz to offload Teslas at heavily discounted prices.
- The article argues that the push for EVs is part of a broader globalist agenda disguised as environmental stewardship, aiming to increase government control over individuals' lives.
- EVs are criticized for their high production and maintenance costs, reliance on environmentally destructive mining practices, and strain on power grids, challenging their status as a sustainable solution.
- The author urges resistance against the globalist agenda, asserting that climate change is exaggerated and that EV mandates are a form of ideological overreach, using Hertz's failure as a cautionary example.

The recent collapse of Hertz's electric vehicle (EV) strategy is more than just a corporate misstep – it's a glaring indictment of the so-called "green revolution" and the globalist agenda pushing it. Hertz, once hailed as a pioneer for its ambitious plan to electrify its rental fleet, is now desperately offloading Teslas at fire-sale prices, with some 2023 Model 3s going for under \$18,000. This isn't just a business failure; it's a cautionary tale about the dangers of blindly embracing climate change hysteria and the green tyranny it enables.

Hertz's foray into EVs was supposed to be a win-win: a bold step toward sustainability and a savvy business move to attract eco-conscious customers. Instead, it turned into a financial disaster. The company's EVs proved to be expensive to maintain, depreciated at an alarming rate, and were less popular with renters than traditional gas-powered vehicles. The result? A $1 billion impairment charge, plummeting stock prices, and the resignation of CEO Stephen Scherr, who admitted the EV push had become a "distraction."

This isn't just about Hertz. It's about the broader agenda being pushed by global elites under the guise of combating climate change. The EV mandate is a Trojan horse for greater government control over our lives, disguised as environmental stewardship. It's a civil rights grab masquerading as a moral imperative.

The truth is, climate change is junk science. The alarmist predictions of doom have been repeatedly debunked, yet the globalist machine continues to push its agenda, using fear and guilt to manipulate the public. The EV craze is a prime example. Governments and corporations are pouring billions into electric vehicles, ignoring their flaws and the real-world consequences of their policies. Hertz's experience is a microcosm of what happens when ideology trumps reality.

Electric cars are NOT green

EVs are not the panacea they're made out to be. They're expensive to produce, expensive to maintain, and rely on a supply chain that's anything but green. The mining of lithium and other rare earth materials for EV batteries is environmentally destructive and often relies on exploitative labor practices. And let's not forget the strain on our power grids, which are already struggling to meet demand.

But the globalists don't care about these inconvenient truths. Their goal isn't to save the planet; it's to consolidate power and control. By forcing us to abandon gas-powered cars and embrace EVs, they're not just dictating what we drive – they're dictating how we live. It's green tyranny, plain and simple.

Hertz's failure should serve as a wake-up call. The company's decision to offload 30,000 EVs by the end of 2024 is a tacit admission that the EV experiment has failed. Customers don't want them, and businesses can't afford them. Yet, governments around the world continue to push EV mandates, subsidizing the industry with taxpayer dollars and punishing those who resist.

The globalist agenda is clear: they want to control every aspect of our lives, from the cars we drive to the food we eat. They're using climate change as a smokescreen to justify their power grab, and the media is complicit in spreading their propaganda.

It's time to push back. We must reject the green tyranny and demand accountability from those who are pushing this agenda. Climate change is not the existential threat they claim it to be, and EVs are not the solution. Hertz's debacle is proof that the emperor has no clothes.

Let's learn from Hertz's mistakes and stand up to the globalist agenda. The future of our freedom depends on it.
